About the Guest-Editor
Ian Ritchie
05

Introduction
Why Do People Feel More Comfortable in One Space than Another?
Ian Ritchie
06

Mind in Life in Architecture
A Conversation with Architectural Historian Alberto Pérez-Gómez
Ian Ritchie
14

Stage Left, Stage Right – The Heavens & Hell
Embodied Meaning & Memory in Performance
Michael Boyd
22

Le Corbusier and Iannis Xenakis, Couvent Sainte-Marie de la Tourette, Éveux-sur-l'Arbresle, France, 1959

Resonant Bodies in Immersive Space
Sarah Robinson
28

Losing Myself
Designing for People with Dementia
Níall McLaughlin
50

Species of Space
Sergei Gepshtein
36

Designing for the Multisensory Mind
Charles Spence
42

Mind Landscapes
Navigation, Habitat and Imagination
James Corner
60

Niall McLaughlin and Yeoryia Manolopoulou, Losing Myself, Venice Architecture Biennale, 2016

ISSN 0003-8504
ISBN 978 1119 685371

Light Regulation of Circadian Rhythms

Fact and Fiction and Design Implications

Russell G Foster

66

Disembodied Worlds – Body, Brain and Architecture in the Digital Age

A Conversation with Psychobiologist Vittorio Gallese

Ian Ritchie

72

News from Nowhere

A Biological Reading

Harry Francis Mallgrave

80

Museums and the Embodied Mind

Sensory Engagement with Artworks and Architecture

Barry C Smith

88

Neuroscience Does Design

What the Brain's Architecture Can Teach Architects

Danbee Kim and Adam R Kampff

94

Visual Neuroscience for Architecture

Seeking a New Evidence-Based Approach to Design

Thomas D Albright, Sergei Gepshtein and Eduardo Macagno

110

Plant Consciousness

Towards an Architecture of Expanded Kinship

Andrew Todd

100

Wicked Neuroarchitecture

Reciprocity, Shapeshifting Problems and a Case for Embodied Knowledge

Fiona Zisch

118

From Another Perspective

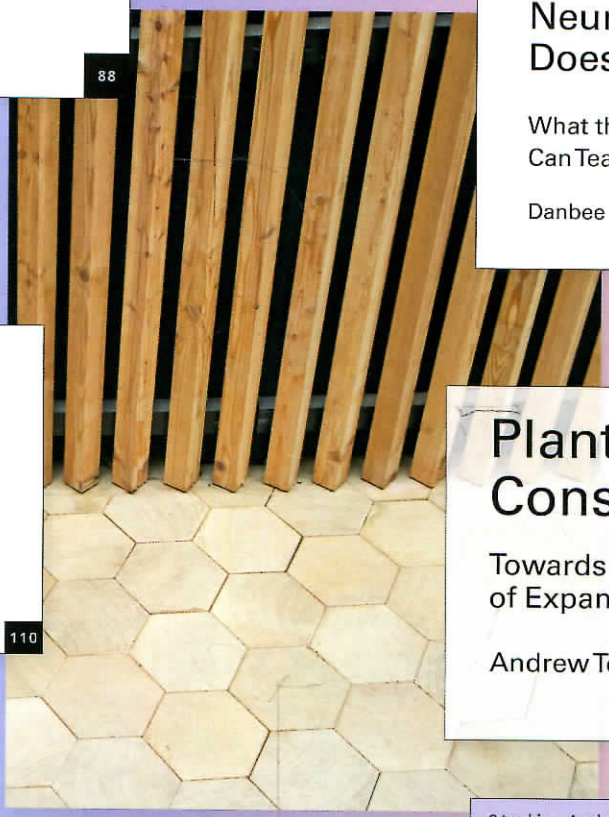

Architect Manqué
Michael Sandle

Neil Spiller

128

Contributors

134

Studio Andrew Todd, Château d'Hardelot Elizabethan Theatre, Condette, France, 2016