This volume, Reimagining the Civic, shows projects ranging from editing landscapes to reinventing familiar types and designing a house, while converging on the civic as a multiprogrammatic space that allows a polyphony of activities, asking — what is the architect's agency in the civic discourse of space?

This book was made possible through an endowment from the Louis I. Kahn Visiting Assistant Professorship at the Yale School of Architecture. It is the tenth in a series of publications of the Louis I. Kahn Assistant Professorship published through the Dean's office.
